TENDER GREETING TO CHILD.

State Has Finished Its Case and Arguments Will Begin on Monday-The End in Sight.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. Pekin, Ill., March 2.-The Samuel Moser murder trial is fast nearing the end, and the case will in all probability go to the jury some time Monday. The State began its rebuttal at 9 o'clock this morning, and concluded at shortly before 5 o'clock this afternoon. The closing arguments will be made Monday, and the fate of the man who confesses to the killing of his wife and three little children, will soon be known. When the jury names this fate, one of the most famous of Illinois murder cases will have ended. This has been the trial of Sam Moser, and the trial of the New Amish Church, a peculiar religious sect whose persecution is alleged to have driven Moser to insanity and to the murder of those he had loved.

There was a pathetic scene shortly after law of the deceased Mrs. Moser, were standing by the walk. Other members of the family were with them, and one of the women was holding in her arms the infant child of Timothy Hohulin, a brother of Mrs. Moser. As Moser approached the group his head dropped. They had been among his persecutors in the church, they had shunned him, why should be try to speak to them now. But when he came up to them Sam saw the baby. He stopped before the group. His eyes rested upon the child, and he touchad the little one tencerly with his hand. The tears came into his eyes. He looked again, and started on. The women were weeping.

touched the little one tenderly with his hand. The tears came into his eyes. He looked again, and started on. The women were weeping.

Mrs. Yergler grasped Moser by the arm to hold him. "Oh, Sam! Sam! would you go by us?" she cried. The prisoner turned his face away, but the young woman cried bitterly, and would not let him go. She spoke to him in German, her words coming between sobs. Strong men, who witnessed the scene, turned away with a sigh. Sheriff Mount asked the women to come into his office. There they talked with Moser for several minutes, the prisoner conversing with them in their own language. Moser for several minutes, the prisoner conversing with them in their own language. Moser gased upon the little child, and the women broke down completely in their sorrow. The prisoner bore up well, but wept when he was led back to his cell, and his wife's sisters turned away, weeping and distressed.

Testify for the State.

The State's rebuttal consisted almost entirely in efforts to show that Moser was sane at the time of the murder and throughout all his life preceeding. Whether or not the State was successful in this is a matter on which there is a great variance of opinions. Attorney Greene for the defense stated to-night that he is satisfied with his case.

Doctor William Schneck, who saw Moser in the jail after he was brought back from Salt Lake City, testified to-day that at the time of his visit to Moser he saw no symptoms of insanity, and it was his opinion that the man was sane. On cross-examination, however, the doctor canswered in reply to a hypothetical question, that, in his opinion, the man who committed such a murder, if he had shown any mental aberration previously, was insane.

Doctor William Niergarth had visited Moser twice in the jail, and testified that Moser seemed rational. The doctor could not state whether Moser was of sound or unsound mind at that time. He made no examination of the defendant to ascertain his mental condition.

Doctor A. R. Warren of Pekin testified that an ineane p

Doctor A. R. Warren of Pekin testified that an insane person never attempts to hide after committing a crime. This testimony was directly opposed to certain previous expert testimony, but was favorable to the State's case. The Doctor's testimony on cross-examination was that it is often true that insane persons commit acts of on cross-examination was that it is offered true that insane persons for whom they have the strongest affection.

Many of Moser's neighbors, all New Amish people, and several members of the family of the deceased Mrs. Moser, testified that in their opinion Sam was in sound mind. Their testimony, however, was pretty well torn up and is not figured on as having

IMPERSONATES A SENATOR.

Culberson Annoyed by Man Who Borrows Money in His Name.

Washington, March 2.—Senator Culberson of Texas has been very much annoyed by the actions of a man who is traveling about the country and borrowing money upon the representation that he is either the Senator himself or the Senator's brother. Letters have been received from various places in the State of New York and from Chicago and Louisville, representing that recent calls have been made upon prominent people by the individual in question. He frequently selects for his victims ex-members of the House of Representatives, who knew the Senator's father there, and appears to have no difficulty in securing fair-sized sums from them. Senator Culberson says that he has only one brother, Robert U. Culberson, who resides in San Antonio, Tex., and that he (the Senator) has not been traveling recently. He asks that friends of his advance no money to others on his account.

Banker Trying to Raise Funds for

Nashville, Iil., March 2.—The Edward Palmer Bank case was continued to Wednesday. March 8, by agreement of the attorneys in the case, who met here today. The continuance was asked by Palmer's attorney, who claims he is not ready for trial.

The trial was originally set to occur at Ashley this morning, at which time, Palmer asserted, he would pay his creditors dollar for dollar. His inability to carry out this assertion, and in order to give him time to raise the money, is given as the cause for the continuance. Palmer has been busy all day sending telegrams in connection with the case, and it is thought will make one more effort to raise the money and pay the ashley Bank depositors.

Tragedy in a Cheap New York Restaurant Attached to a Mission House.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, March 2.-George Gale of Providence, R. I., was to-day beaten and kicked to death for 6 cents' worth of food by employes in the Peniel Mission restaurant, which is attached to "The Ragged on. Church." at No. 39 Bowery. This statement was made by eyewitnesses in the Essex Market Police Court on the arraignment of the manager, cashler, waiter and dishwasher of the place on a charge of murder. The coffee-house where Gale was killed is one of the cheapest in the Bowery, and is is one of the cheapest in the Bowery, and is known to newsboys and the frequenters of lodging-houses as the "Six-Cent House."

The meal the man had was, beans, 2 cents; bread, 2 cents; coffee, 2 cents. Because he did not pay, the witnesses say, he was pounced upon by four men and killed while he straggled to escape.

In the rear of the restaurant every night religious services are held, at which the proprietor plays the organ or leads the meeting, and exhorts the employes to lead a Christian life. Above the cashier's desk, in front of which the struggle occurred, is a family, returned to St. Louis after being absent for thirty-two years and was re-united with his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Kelly, whom he had not seen or heard from since she sent him on an errand in 1869.

Three of the men dragged the body of Gale to the hallway of No. 41 Bowery, where it was so composed as to give the impression that the man had fallen downstairs and received injuries which caused his death.

Instead of returning from the store where he was sent, Cleary boarded a boat and went down the river. He sent word to his family, telling the mthat he had gone South. When the family a few weeks later received word of the sinking of the boat on which John started South they concluded that he perished with the others. Their belief was strengthened when they did not hear from him, and he has long been mourned as dead. When Cleary returned to the city he did not know what members of his family were living, and he had a hard time locating his sister, who lives at No. 3325 Maffitt avenue.
"When I arrived in the city," said Cleary,
"I went around my old haunts, hoping to find some one I knew when I was a boy. I found none, and for a time I feared that impression that the man had fallen downstairs and received injuries which caused his death.

The assault and the taking of the body to the hallway were witnessed by a number of persons, who testified against the four men in the Essex Market Court, where they were arraigned later.

Panic in a New York Factory, and Several Women Hurt as Result of Stampede.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, March 2.-Frenzied with fear of the flames that were crackling behind them, men trampled upon girls and fought back women from windows to-day in a factory-fire panic at No. 58 Bleecker street. Several women were severely cut by brok-

There were about 100 men and women at work in the furriers' and hatters' shops on the three top floors of the building when the flames broke out in the second-story hallway. The structure is old and made excellent fuel. There was a mad rush for the fire escapes. A stout girl became wedged tightly in the ladder way on the third-story escape. Behind her the penned-up men and women grew frantic. Men lost their heads and urled women behind them. When the firemen extricated the stout woman there was a wild rush for safety. Crowds in the street hissed and shouted

"Cowards!" at the men as they dashed the helpless women aside. Frank Gittleman, who climbed to the awning top, fought the men, forcing them aside until the women had descended.

PUBLIC LIBRARY VACANCIES. Examinations of Applicants Will Be Held Wednesday.

Examinations of applicants for places on the staff of the St. Louis Public Library will be held at the Public Library office Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The examinations have been arranged for the purpose of filling the vacancies caused by the resignations of several of the library staff and to provide for somewhat more prompt handling of the constantly increase.

ing work. Applicants of both sexes are eligible. A first-class high-school education is one of the requisites. The applicants will be examined in literature, general information, and general history, together with translations in any foreign languages they may be versed in.

Several assistants have been taken from the St. Louis Public Library recently to fill important positions as chief librarians elsewhere. This emphasizes the statement that the St. Louis Public Library is considered an excellent training school.

The Great "Britannica."

The rush still continues at Crawford's in connection with his extraordinary sale of the New Twentleth Century Encyclopedia Britannica, and any one who may be thinking of availing themselves of the opportunity of obtaining this marvelous work at the greatly reduced prices should act without delay. The edition of this work secured by Mr. Crawford for the benefit of his patrons brings the world's history down to the dawn of the Twentleth Century and includes the latest discoveries and developments in art, literature and the sciences. It gives the returns of the 1900 United States census, the results of the last presidential election, a full and complete history of the Spanish-American, Anglo-Boer and Chinese wars to January 1, 1901, information which cannot be obtained in any like publication on the market. Add to this the fact that the Britannica is the acknowledged standard authority the world over and some idea can be obtained of the value of the offer made by Mr. Crawford. The work is brought by him within the reach of all, as but a trivial payment only down is required, upon which delivery of the whole mammoth library is made, and the balance is payable in little monthly installments. HIS PLEA WAS NOT ACCEPTED. Prisoner Didn't Know Whether He Committed an Offense.

Fred Burg, a fail prisoner cnarged with burglary, was arraigned in Judge Wood's court yesterday. As soon as he came before the bar he entered a plea of guilty. Circuit Attorney Folk inquired into the case and found Burg was charged with stealing an old suit of clothes from William Haines of No. 4306 Easton avenue, Mr. Folk asked him if he stole the suit, and Burg replied he did not think he did. Mr. Folk then refused to accept the plea until he could make an investigation of the case. Burg is the man who wrote the letter to Miss Maud Coulter of No. 5456 Maple avenue, telling her of the baneful influence in the life of her brother, Lieutenant Robert Coulter, who died of an overdose of morphine ten days ago.
